

Designated 1983

The two homes represent four generations of Dawsons who worked their farm, known as "Rocky Glen." The farm was purchased in 1840, and at its greatest extent, the Dawsons farmed 500 acres. The Victorian Gothic Revival style frame house with its steep center gable was built in 1874. The second farmhouse, clad in stucco, is a Craftsman style house that was built with the growing prosperity of the Dawson Farm in 1912. The adjacent parkland was part of this farm, and included outbuildings such as a bank barn and granary
